A little more than ten years ago, the University of Alabama School of Dentistry came into being. The first graduates, the Class of 1952, had the inspiration and energy to publish a yearbook, the Dentala, as a permanent record of their academic, clinical, and social experiences. The succeeding classes have perpetuated this practice, and as a consequence, we have an excellent account of dental education in Alabama. The publication of the 1959 Dentala marks the beginning of the second decade of the School of Dentistry's existence. The Dental School student body, staff, and administration take pride in presenting to our friends and the community at large this edition, a concrete illustration of student ingenuity and competence.

GREENE VARDIMAN BLACK, M.D., D.D.S., Sc.D., LL.D.
1836-1915.

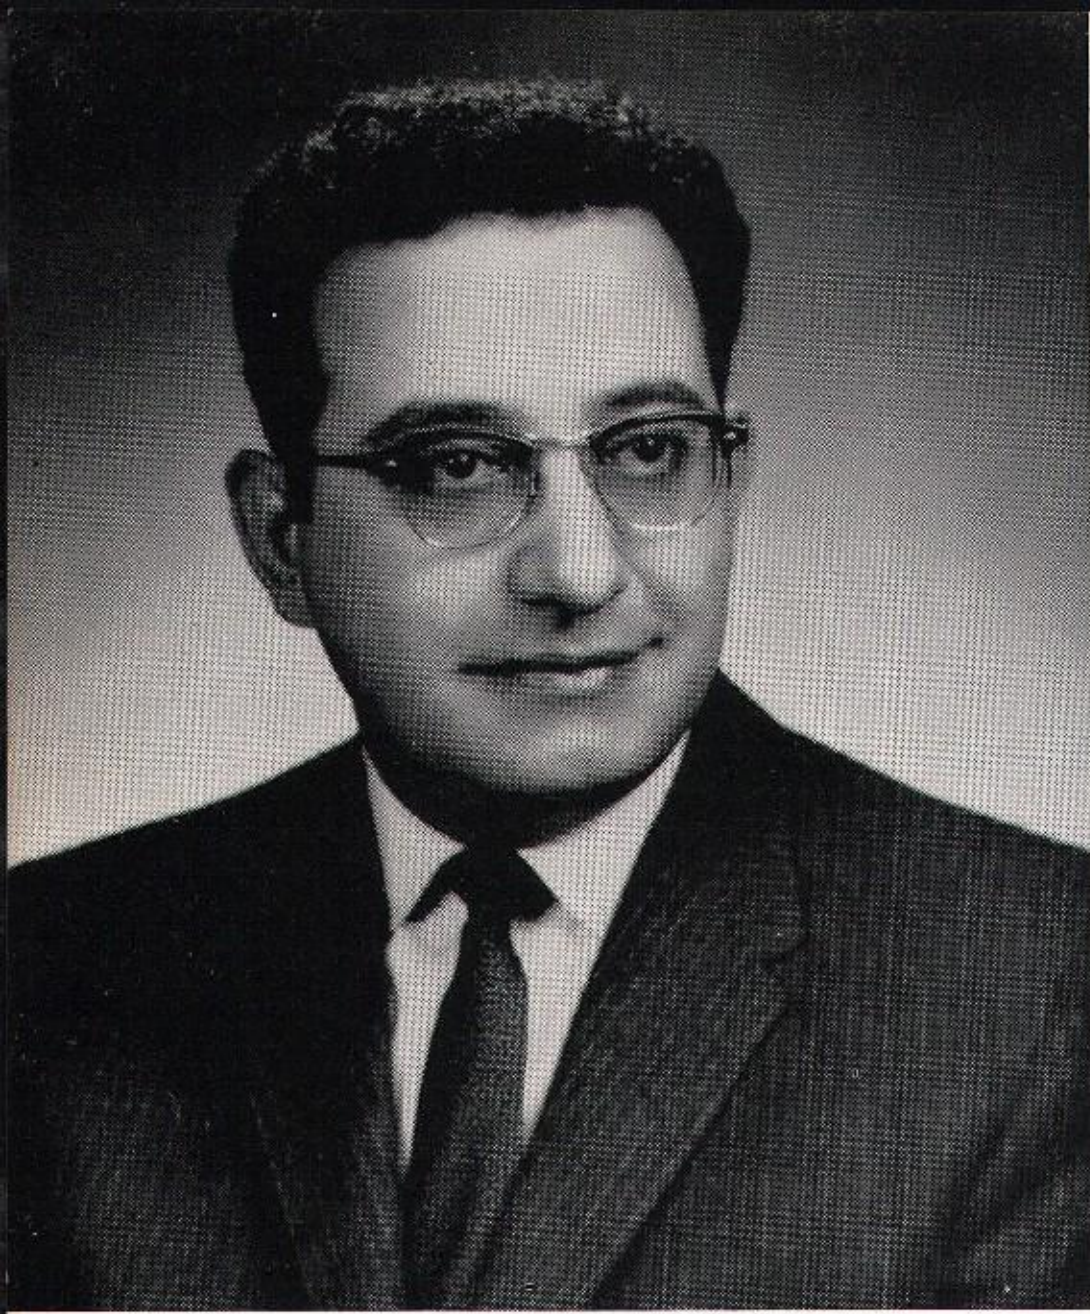

Dental Educator and Scientist.

Born in central Illinois, Dr. Black, self-trained except for a few months of country schooling, was the outstanding dental scientist of the nineteenth century.

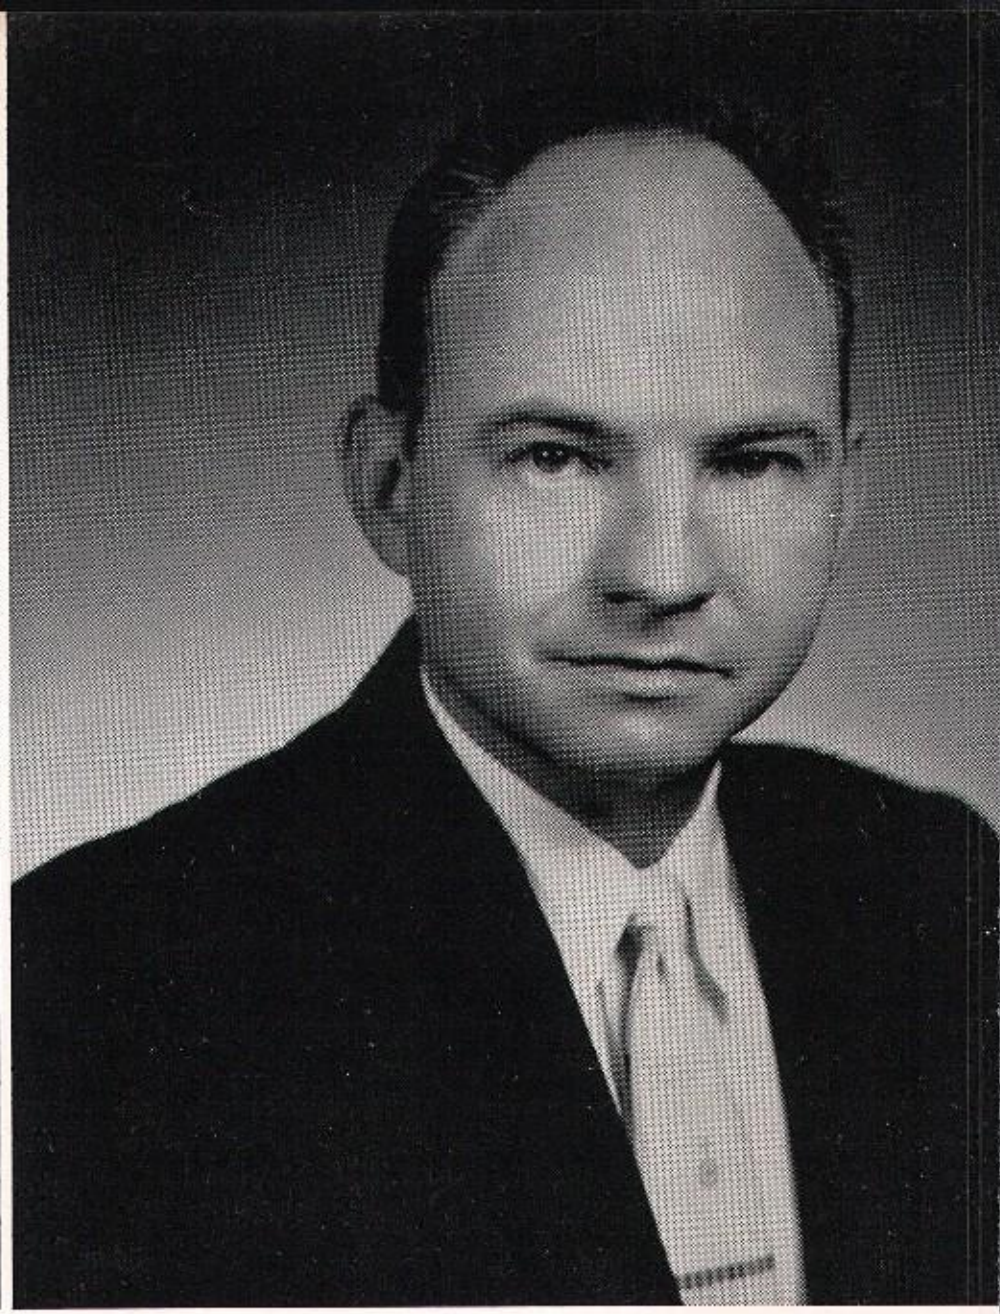

From his coordination of physics, chemistry, anatomy, histology, physiology, bacteriology, and pathology with accurate clinical observation, emerged preventive dentistry. This accomplishment together with researches into the physical properties of filling materials revolutionized dental practice.

Besides contributing many valuable papers to periodical publications of his time, he wrote the first book on bacteria of the mouth and other books on dental anatomy, the supporting structures of the teeth, operative dentistry and dental pathology.

AMBROISE PARE, Father of Modern Surgery.

In an edition of his work published in 1634 this is written:

"I heard it reported by a creditable person that he saw a lady of the fine nobility who, instead of a rotten tooth she drew, made a sound tooth, drawn from one of her waiting maids at the same time, to be substituted and inserted: which tooth in process of time, as if were taking root, grew so firm as that she could chew upon it as well as upon any of the rest. But as I formerly said, I have this only from hearsay."

LORD LISTER

In 1867 Lord Lister employed carbolic acid in antiseptic surgery. He thought that infection was carried into wounds by the air. He injected a spray of carbolic acid into the air of the entire operating room. The antiseptic method gradually merged into the aseptic.

MEMOIRS

When some forty-four students spend four years together some interesting and amusing incidents are bound to occur. Such is the case with this group of senior students. Some of the incidents were quite funny; however, others were not so amusing at the time they occurred.

It is hoped that the few lines written here will bring to mind some of the more humorous events that happened during our course of study.

It all began in September of 1955, when fifty-two scared, but anxious students began their four years of study at the University of Alabama School of Dentistry. Although we were a little apprehensive it didn't take us long to find our way around, especially to Gross lab, Histology lab, and the Coffee Shop.

Incidentally it happened in Gross that "Little Obbie" made the remarkable diagnosis that his subject met his fate via buckshot or by swallowing a firecracker. However this diagnosis was not sustained by Dr. Sensenig.

Charlie Chambers had to check the assignment card closely to make sure the table was really his. "Steel" seemed to be amused that Charlie didn't know which table he was assigned to.

NANCY BELCHER, Secretary, Endodontia

Then, too, dentures had to be made and Colonel Milburn in his sporting way reminded us to "get busy or we'll send you home for Christmas (as a present, that is) and you'll be picking cotton next fall."

Bill Burton and Charley Spencer hit on a new idea of impression material. They would use peanut butter so that it could be eaten after the work at hand was completed.

Billy Beall, who possesses great artistic ability, carved a prehistoric monster in technic lab. Not by choice you understand.

Norman Carlson and Ken Cochran proved to be heavyweights when they were challenged at one of the downtown cafes.

We were startled to learn in Physiology that nothing does it like your favorite soft drink.

I think most of us would agree with Dr. McFall that we would "think twice before doing a hemisection of the mandible."

Wynston Pittman gave Dr. Pigman a test tube to observe a characteristic color change. The test tube was quite hot and Dr. Pigman's hand and Mr. Pitman's face turned a characteristic color.

Too bad. Henry Bright should have known not to leave a wax tooth on his desk. Anyone could have sat on it, but Dan Greer was the lucky one. Anyone for a slightly used carving?

Ned Cargile took inlay impressions with sticky wa after being advised by Dr. Osmund Coleman.

Dr. Bloom has been casting gold for 30 years with out a mishap. Well, it happened in our class. Those weren't flying saucers, ma, that was pieces of molten gold. "Gee, we could have been killed!"

B. Q. Scruggs didn't try to stay ahead, it just happened that way. If he had had one more tooth to carve he would have died—the simple way out to say the least.

Talmadge Farrar is a very economy minded fellow. He has enough samples to keep his practice going for several years. It is rumored that he has two bedrooms, a kitchen, a living room, and a sample room in his apartment.

Bill DuBose is no plumber nor is he a plumber's son but he could trace pipes in the lecture room better than anyone. In fact it took nearly an hour for Bill to trace the pipes in room 40.

Remember when Phil Timberlake caused a mild riot when he stopped the fan in technic lab with a broom handle?

Charles Spencer threatened to go to the Dean about somebody wetting his bed. No, that's not right. Somebody put a bag of water in his bed and it didn't burst until the wee, wee hours of morning. There was a card left signed "The Phantom."

Bob Gray holds the world's record for most times first out of lecture. He is undisputed champion since there are no challengers who can match his speed and size. They're off and running.

SONG IN A DENTIST'S CHAIR

By CHRISTOPHER MORLEY

All joys I bless, but I confess there is one greatest thrill:

What the dentist does when he stops the buzz and puts away the drill.

His engine hums along my gums its excavating drone

I salivate and gurgling wait, vibrating to the bone

Oh will he save this tooth concave or will he now decide

To grind away some more decay? He murmurs, "Open Wide"

So I must feel the burring steel, the hot and fragile twinge

And mutely bide till he push aside the bracket on the hinge.

But will he swerve toward that nerve? I wonder, gagged agape:

He sees me gulp and spares the pulp—My God, a close escape!

The creosote is in my throat, I weep against my will;

My nostrils itch, sensation which I can't relieve until

He stops the buzz and packs in fuzz and puts away the drill.

I grant the bliss of love's warm kiss, or wealth, or fame, or skill:

These I esteem but yet I deem there is one greater thrill—

When he stops the buzz as at last he does,

and puts away the drill!

Dr. McCracken's memorable lecture will never be forgotten when he said, "Oh, how right Dr. Kennedy was when he placed Class II between I and III!"

Jerry Shiver had a patient to regurgitate while he was holding impression material in her mouth, but he showed that it pays to hold on. Never say die!

John Parrish was embarrassed to find that he was listening to a young female's heartbeat without the ear pieces of his stethoscope in his ears.

Bill Burton, being the community minded person that he is, volunteered to keep the alley lighted for his friends.

Dr. Rowe had a little difficulty replacing a denture impression in his patient's mouth. No wonder, wrong patient!

Al Philipson solved his problem of a hard to fit denture. This trouble ceased when he suggested to the patient that she needed some surgery done before a more suitable denture could be made.

Little Henry Bright had a beautiful wedding with a multitude of guests. He even took several of his guests with him on his honeymoon. Mrs. Hudson was called upon, but Mrs. Hudson just couldn't hear with all of the doors and windows locked.

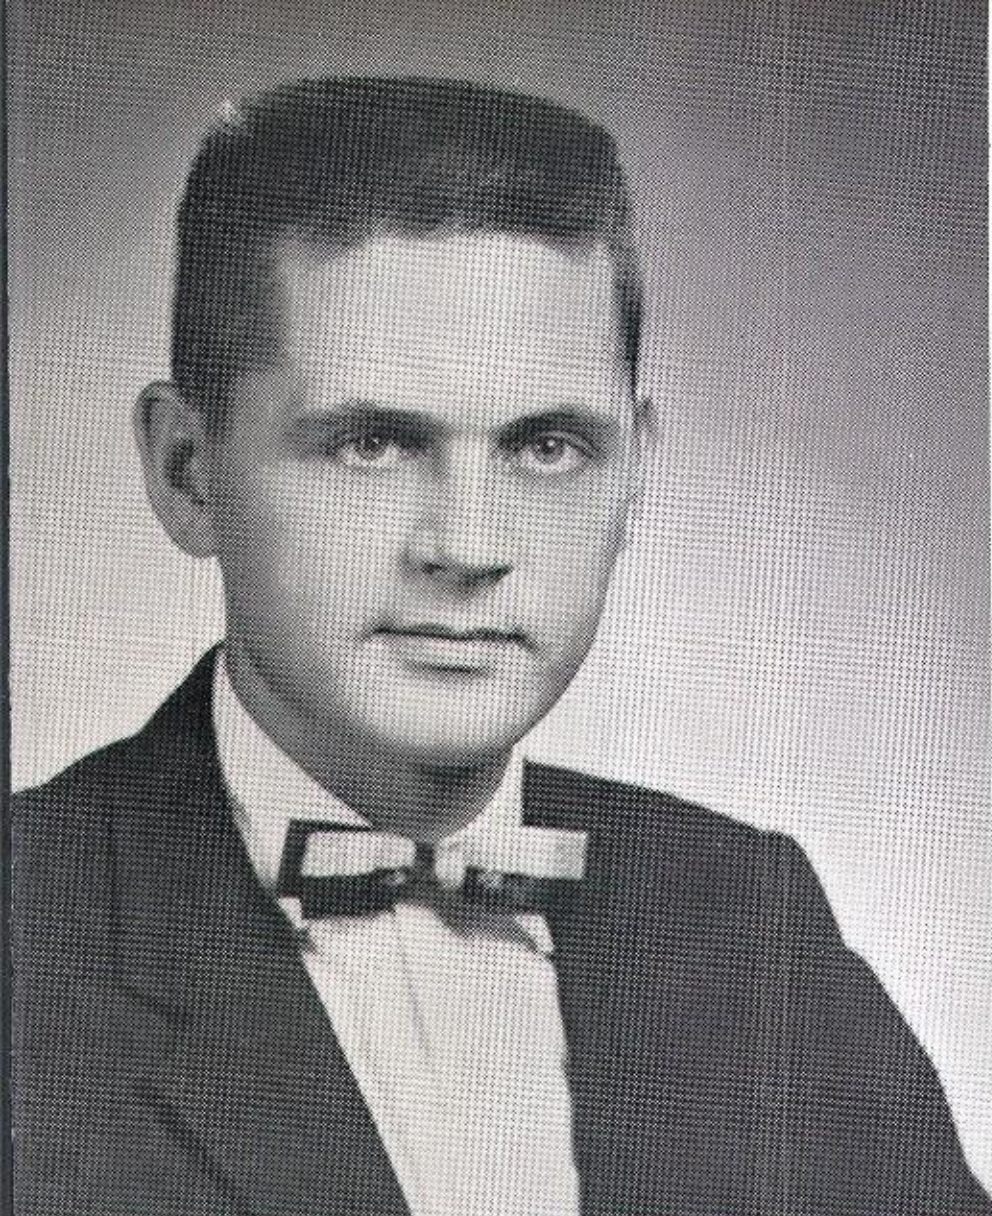

Parker Shaffer took a powder at one of the dances. Gone over night. Gifts for breakfast.

John Crawford has kept everyone posted on the train schedule for four years. The whistle was just one of John's famous trademarks.

Ben Renwick stayed edentulous for a year waiting for the perfect fitting partial. Where are those dentures, Ben?

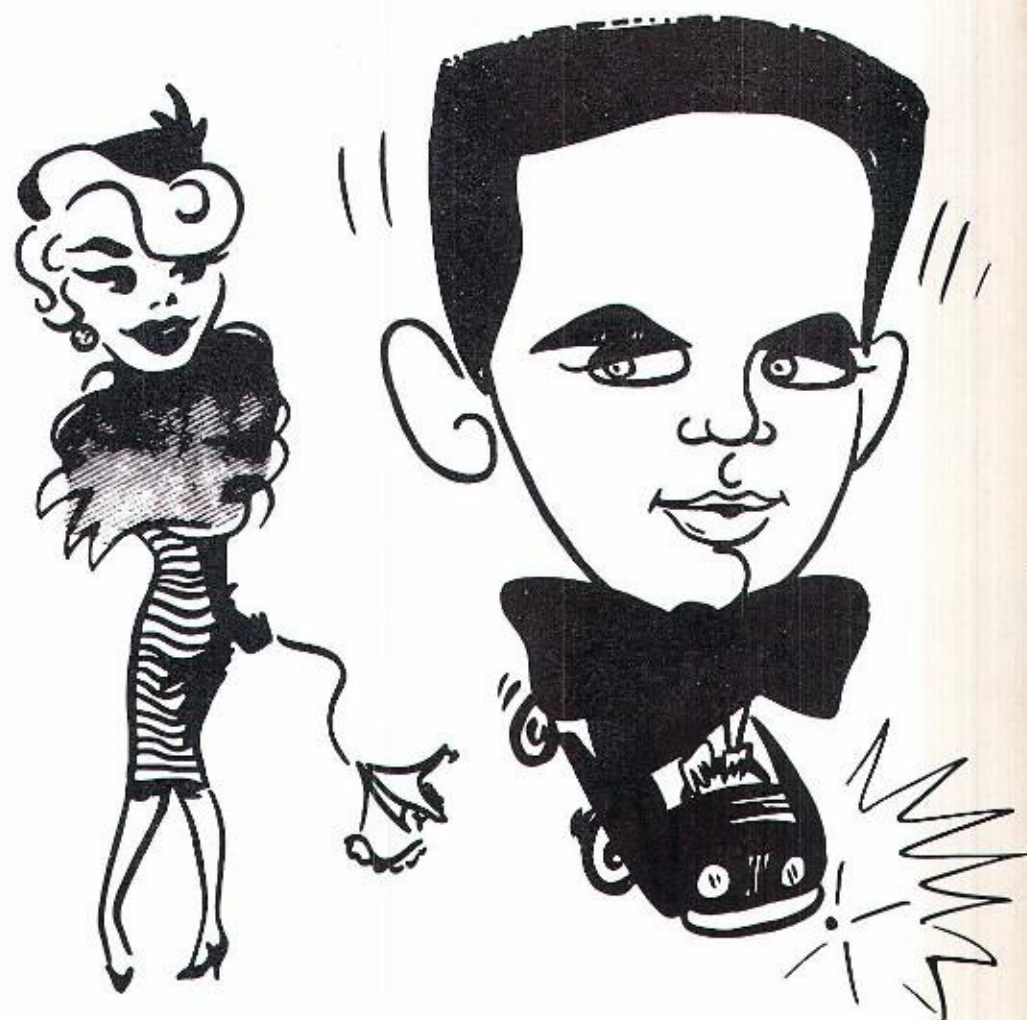

As we now look back on the last four years, our disappointments, fears, and hardships seem small in the light of our expectations for the future. May we carry with us the memories of good times and good fellowship we enjoyed together over these last four years.

Selecting Your Laboratory

With Dentists who know values, the primary consideration when it comes to Laboratory service is technical knowledge and skill. Reputation—"record of performance," is of utmost importance. Reputations are built slowly, over a long period of years by fine quality and superior service.

When it comes to selecting your Laboratory, the deciding factors are quality, service, prestige—and other considerations less tangible than price, but much more important.

We have been in this business for forty-seven years; this accumulated store of knowledge and experience is at your command.

New Moulds New Shades in Dura-Blend

Tested for Detectability

In a series of tests at important dental meetings only 10.7% of the dentists participating were able to accurately distinguish Dura-Blend anterior teeth from natural teeth. Such teeth are clearly undetectable under ordinary conditions. Send for details of test.

New Moulds, New Shades

Thirteen new moulds have been added. Ten upper moulds originally introduced with Myerson's AEsthetic porcelain teeth offer more subtle labial carvings, slender forms and longer ridge lap. Three new lower moulds, short in relation to width, increase convenience in selection.

Three new shades, M61, M65, M69, have been added to increase Dura-Blend's shade-matching superiority. M61 is quite light and bright, M65, similar but darker, and M69, quite grey. New shade guide proved first choice in match to natural teeth 44 percent more often than the shade guide which scored second in this respect.

Proven Durability

Durability of Dura-Blend is unequalled, as proven in over ten years of successful use in hundreds of thousands of cases.
